

Table of Contents

Table of Contents XIII

List of Figures XIX

List of Tables..... XXI

Acronyms and Abbreviations..... XXIII

A What this Dissertation is about: Relevance, questions and approaches to arrive at the Ethics in Consumer Choice 1

1 Introduction 1

1.1 Motivation of the study 1

1.2 Goal of the thesis and methodological approach 7

1.3 Organisation of the thesis 9

1.4 References..... 14

B Ethics and Consumers' Choice..... 19

2 Consumers' decision making..... 19

2.1 The decision making process – Total and partial models of choice 20

2.2 Preferences, utility and choice 28

2.3 Decision making strategies 36

2.4 References..... 40

3 Measuring preferences 49

3.1 Discrete choice analysis..... 49

3.1.1 Theoretical framework of Discrete Choice Analysis 51

3.1.2 The multinomial logit model and its limitations..... 52

3.1.3 The latent class choice model 54

3.2 Designing a choice experiment..... 60

3.3 References..... 64

4 Possibilities of ethical behaviour 71

4.1 The phenomenon of ethical consumption 72

4.1.1 Research areas of ethical consumption 79

4.1.1.1 Consumers' willingness to pay..... 82

4.1.1.2 The attitude-behaviour gap 84

4.1.2 Market relevance of sustainable consumption and trends.....	87
4.1.3 Challenging ethical consumption.....	90
4.1.4 The (missing) link between ethical, sustainable and Fair Trade consumption ..	92
4.2 Fair Trade.....	97
4.2.1 The morality of Fair Trade.....	97
4.2.2 From a decentralised movement to an international label	98
4.2.3 Social and environmental standards and labelling.....	100
4.2.4 Research areas of Fair Trade.....	105
4.2.4.1 The distribution of Fair Trade products in the mainstream	106
4.2.4.2 Who benefits from higher retail prices of Fair Trade products?	108
4.2.4.3 Impact of certification at the producer level – The findings of case studies	111
4.2.5 Shortcomings and limitations of Fair Trade	114
4.2.6 Similarities and differences between Fair Trade and aid.....	116
4.3 Charitable Giving.....	124
4.3.1 Motivations for charitable giving.....	124
4.3.1.1 Theoretical foundations	125
4.3.1.2 Research areas of charitable giving.....	130
4.3.2 Characteristics of donors.....	133
4.3.3 Charitable giving in Germany.....	133
4.3.3.1 Development of donation volume	134
4.3.3.2 Donation purposes	135
4.3.3.3 Profile of active donors.....	136
4.4 Résumé.....	138
4.5 References.....	138
C Empirical Studies based on the Example of Coffee.....	169
References	172
5 Relevance of Fair Trade, organic production and Cause-related Marketing for product choice – An analysis based on the Information Display Matrix	173
5.1 Introduction.....	173

5.2	Theoretical approaches to explain consumers' decision making.....	175
5.3	Methods to assess consumers' information search: The IDM.....	177
5.4	Design of the study	178
5.5	Sample and experimental results	180
5.6	Conclusions.....	189
5.7	References.....	190
	Appendix A1: Questionnaire.....	195
	Appendix A2: Example of the IDM.....	204
6	Are ethical consumption and charitable giving substitutes or not? Insights into consumers coffee choice	205
6.1	Introduction – Goal of the study	205
6.2	Methodology: Choice modelling and latent class segmentation	208
6.3	Empirical application – A choice experimental survey	209
6.4	Model specification and variable definition	211
6.5	Results: characterisation of the latent segments of coffee consumers.....	212
6.6	Conclusions.....	223
6.7	References.....	224
	Appendix B1: Questionnaire.....	229
	Appendix B2: Example of a choice set.....	242
7	Acceptance and critical success factors of Cause-related Marketing in Germany – Evidence from a consumer survey	243
7.1	Introduction.....	243
7.2	Theoretical background	245
7.3	Design of the study and sample characterisation.....	248
7.4	Empirical results	249
7.4.1	Descriptive statistics.....	249
7.4.1.1	CrM purchase behaviour	249
7.4.1.2	Importance of product fit.....	249
7.4.1.3	Information sources	250

7.4.1.4	Willingness to switch brands because of CrM	251
7.4.1.5	Cause-Brand-Fit.....	251
7.4.1.6	Attitudes towards CrM	252
7.4.2	Multivariate statistics	254
7.4.2.1	Factor analysis regarding consumers attitudes towards CrM.....	254
7.4.2.2	Segmenting consumers with regard to CrM.....	255
7.4.2.3	Brand switching behaviour regarding CrM: A logit model.....	263
7.5	Conclusions.....	265
7.6	References.....	266
	Appendix C	270
8	Is Cause-related Marketing Green-Washing?	273
8.1	Introduction.....	273
8.2	Background on CrM and green-washing	274
8.2.1	Introduction into Cause-related Marketing	274
8.2.2	What is meant by calling actions and promotions green-washing?	277
8.2.3	What are the risks in general if consumers question corporate honesty and regard a company as a green-washer?	279
8.2.4	Relevance for the food sector.....	280
8.2.5	Similarities between CrM and Fair Trade.....	280
8.3	Methodological background	281
8.4	Empirical results	282
8.4.1	Consumers' attitudes towards CrM and green-washing	283
8.4.2	Determinants of consumers' green-washing attitude.....	287
8.5	Discussion and conclusions	289
8.6	References.....	290
	Appendix D: Questionnaire.....	295
9	Is there need for more transparency and efficiency in cause-related marketing 305
9.1	Introduction.....	305
9.2	Background on Cause-related Marketing	307

9.2.1 Theoretical background regarding Cause-related Marketing.....	307
9.2.2 Transparency as a critical success factor for effective CrM	310
9.2.3 Previous studies on Cause-related Marketing	311
9.3 Methodological background	313
9.4 The sample.....	314
9.5 Empirical results	316
9.6 Conclusions.....	323
9.7 References.....	324
D Synthesis: Ethics in Consumer Choice and Empirical Analysis based on the
Example of Coffee.....	331
10 Summary, conclusions and implications	331
10.1 Limitations	340
10.2 Outlook and implications	341
10.3 References.....	344